

Acknowledgements

I am indebted to many individuals and organizations for their assistance during the development of this Report. The Meetings and Interviews Appendix (A) lists those who met with me to discuss the work in progress. I learned from every one of these exchanges and I am grateful to each of these individuals for their guidance.

My principal debt of gratitude is to my two collaborators, Dr. James Duderstadt and Sir Graeme Davies who, with the wisdom and generosity of great leaders, provided their experience, ideas, time, judgement and open feedback to improve the directions and content of this exercise.

I was also greatly supported by the research assistance of Betsy Donald, Matt Lucas, Adrienne Galway and Patrick Gutteridge; the fine editorial contributions of M.P. Stevens, Susan Murley, Paul Fraumeni and Althea Blackburn-Evans; and, the dedicated secretarial contributions of Huguette MacArthur, Vivian Chan and Maila Doloroso.

A number of senior scholars in fields related to the themes of this Report were instrumental in lending me the lens of their respective disciplines and their own research experience and judgement to the aid of this work. Some did so unknowingly before the Report was even underway as I began to systematically think through the issues underlying this project; others, through direct assistance to the work of the Report. I am particularly grateful to Wendy Dobson, Dan Lang, David Wolfe, Meric Gertler, Doug Perovic, David Cameron, Byron Moldofsky, Roger Martin, Glen Jones and Michael Skolnik.

Finally, I am also indebted to the Sponsors of the Report, Kenneth Knox, David Lindsay, Veronica Lacey and Bob Christie, and, to Jeff Lozon and Dan Burns, for the privilege of undertaking this Report and for their commitment to shared learning.
